Adam Shrager
February 8th- 19th

I am working on a plan for my technical advisor to implement the API. I have also got pretty close to the end of my research. With the research I have now, I can probably submit the project and still get an A. I am doing some more research on snow depth. This is very tedious because I have to pick and choose which snow sensors I want to sample from and there are thousands. Then I have to request the data from those that I chose and get the information in an online text file that is pretty hard to read. I have also submitted my second revised PMD.